

IT'S YOUR TIME LET'S GET IT BACK

CAMPAIGN CHECKLIST STAGE 2

Branches are advised to seek initial advice from their regional/devolved nation office and the national health and safety (H&S) official before starting a local workload campaign.

4. FIT FOR PURPOSE HEALTH AND SAFETY STRUCTURES

- Identify existing health and safety structures (eg H&S committees, H&S departments/managers, duty holders, competent persons, responsible persons, safety management systems).
- Ensure that the health and safety committees are established/re-established with equal voting numbers of employee and employer representatives.
- Populate the health and safety committees and other consultative structures with an appropriate mix of senior branch officers, health and safety representatives and workload reps.
- Ensure that workload and work-related stress is a standing item for health and safety committees.
- Seek to establish collaborative working with the employer and audit existing work-related stress risk management against the HSE Stress Management Standards guidance.
- Use UCU workload/stress survey data and workload inspection reports to inform the organisational stress risk assessment process and the employer legal duty to manage risk.

5. A DUAL APPROACH - JOINT WORKING GROUPS

- Ensure that workload and work-related stress is a standing item for the JCC/ JNC/local bargaining machinery.
- Campaign for the establishment of a joint workload working group (this might be the subject of a local workload claim).
- Negotiate and agree terms of reference for the joint working group.
- Identify areas for joint working and collaboration with the employer.
- The joint working group should align to the local bargaining machinery and the health and safety consultative structures.
- Notwithstanding the presence or absence of a joint working group, ensure that UCU recommended control measures in step 4 reflect the priorities developed in step 3.
- Local workload claims should be harmonious with the evidence-based investigation and risk management approaches used in steps 2 and 4.

6. AGITATE AND NEGOTIATE

- Review the campaign plan developed in step 3 and implement an action plan incorporating a health and safety, collective bargaining and organising approach.
- Continue to conduct workplace inspections and workload / stress surveys (as appropriate) to reach staff, understand the issues, build support and inform the employer legal duty to manage risk.
- The organising approach puts activists, members and potential members at the centre of our workplace campaigning. An organising approach relies on reps and activists making personal contact with members and prospective members; finding out about the concerns and problems they experience; and encouraging them to become involved in taking them up with the employer in efforts to resolve them and improve working conditions for everyone.
- Organising builds and enhances the capacity of UCU branches to address the core concerns of members through campaigning and bargaining.
